2025 AGC & HCSS Highway Work Zone Safety Survey Results

Sixty percent of highway construction firms report having at least one car crash into their work zones during the past year, a new survey by the Associated General Contractors of America and HCSS finds.

AGC officials and contractors said the new data highlights the need for stronger work zone safety laws and better enforcement.

YINZ GOOD?

Chronic stress can affect the body and mind, leading to anxiety, depression, and unhealthy lifestyle choices associated with heart disease and high blood pressure.

To reduce the harmful effects of stress, the American Heart Association (AHA) recommends regular physical activity, such as walking or brisk walking. Moving more can help lower blood pressure, improve your mood, and give you more energy and stamina. In this article, the AHA offers tips for being more active.
